Innovative Play For Kids

FLEXIBLE INSIGHTFUL
INSPIRING

Her approach is practical, her message is relevant

In a world that is changing too fast, Page Olson is a calming presence and a voice of sanity. With a blend of compassion, insight, and wisdom she brings encouragement to parents who worry about the future their children are facing.

Having immersed herself in working with families and organizations for more than 20 years, Page is uniquely gifted in opening parents' minds to new ways of understanding and engaging with their children. Page believes the foundational question every parent should ask as his or her child grows into an individual is, "Who are you?" If you want to slow down your children's lives, learn how to listen to understand your children, and provide more unstructured play time to bring out your children's individuality, Page is ready to help you do it.

Parents face challenging changes

- What does it mean to be, "The Keeper of the Question?" Structuring your home environment so your children can discover the answer to the question, "Who am I?."

The information age

- Libraries are more relevant today than ever before: What children in the early 1900's had that our children today need and how the library fills that critical gap.
- Smart kids with top notch education's are having trouble landing jobs: Knowing theory is great but practical use is what matters, the negative impact of the electronic revolution and what parents can do to change it.

Understanding Play

- Types of play: While all children are curious and love to explore their world there are many other types of play. Learn about the different types of play and how different child personalities will prefer or have strengths in different types of play.
- Stages of play: The ability to play cooperatively develops over many years. Learn what the different stages are, what the behaviors are and how to facilitate emotionally healthy play at each stage.
- Creative play is progressive: Watch your children's core interests grow from tiny beginnings, and learn how to support their ebb and flow as they grow.

Page is a very special person and if you choose to work with her, prepare to be challenged to grow, inspired to change, and gifted with new perspectives." ~AW

Anyone working with you [Page] is in for an incredible experience.

I believe Page is one of those people who was just born with the gift of being able to understand children on their own terms, from their own perspective, therefore she responds to them with genuine respect and understanding. ~L. Bright
